Decrease in Deposits,	2,320,673

The following is the general comparison with the previous exhibit, and also with the movement this time last season:

	Sept. 3, 1859.	Sept. 1, 1860.	Aug. 25, 1860.
Capital	$68,645,000	$69,758,000	$69,758,000
Loans	118,184,258	129,027,890	130,578,997
Specie	21,478,299	19,035,980	20,119,779
Circulation	8,373,318	9,253,849	9,142,006
Gross Deposits.	93,250,429	102,229,586	104,423,121

The Bank Statement has had the effect of settling the rate of interest at seven per cent. The decline in the specie reserve to its present low point is to be traced to the low rates which have been ruling for money. In London, when the exchanges run against the country, and gold is being freely exported, the Bank of England always advances the rate of interest. The advance usually checks the export of specie, because, persons who owe money abroad, wait until it is fully due, or until the market is easier, before paying it. For some time past our importers have been enabled to sell their bills receivable at a figure so low as to induce them to do so, and remit the proceeds to their foreign creditors in gold.

The market for money works easily and loans can be procured with ease at seven per cent.; there have been some transactions at six.

Business paper is not in very large supply; there is a good demand for all fair names, and prime short date bills are scarce. We quote:

First class short bills	7 %
do. single names	8 %
do. endorsed long	8@9 %
Second class long	12 %

Foreign Exchanges show a slight decline at the close. There are drawers of sterling at 109⅞, while others demand 110; but from what we can learn there are large sales at the lower figure. The closing rates for remittance by the steamer ARABIA, via. Boston, are as follows:

On London, 60 days Bankers Bills	109⅞@110
do. Commercial Bills	109 @109⅞
do. Southern or Canada B'k Bills	109¼@109⅞
On Paris, 60 days Bankers' Bills	5.12½@5.11¼
Amsterdam, 60 days	41⅞@42 cts. per guilder.
Bremen, 60 "	79½@79¾ cts. per rix dollar.
Hamburg, 60 "	37 @37½ cts. per marc banco.
Frankfort, 60 "	41¼@42 cts.

For Banker's Bills on London at short sight the rate is 110¾. We hear of no sales of sixty day bills over 110, and none under 109⅞, but the favorable tone of the advices to-day from England, indicating a larger demand for breadstuffs, will probably produce a better supply of Commercial bills, drawn against shipments of grain.

The following is a comparative statement of the exports, exclusive of specie, from New York to foreign ports for the week and since January 1:

	1858.	1859.	1860.
For the week	$1,018,431	$1,562,169	$1,803,457
Previously rept'd.	42,499,577	42,884,856	58,593,458
Since Jan. 1	$43,518,008	$44,447,025	$60,456,915

Shipments of specie from New York for week ending September 1st $1,302,226

The Stock Market for the week has been quiet and dull. There has not been a very large amount of business transacted, and prices have pretty generally declined. The reason seems to have been the general desire of all the regular stock dealers to depress the prices. The rapid advance was looked upon as unhealthy, and it was supposed that a moderate decline would be, ultimately, of greater stregth to the market than a continued rise. The large receipts of the Western roads still continue, and the brilliant prospects on which the July speculation was grounded is as bright as ever. The recent accounts from England are favorable to the prospects of a good market for breadstuffs, and the large estimates of our own crop are fully carried out in the receipts of grain at the principal depots.

The indications now are, that as soon as the rate for money is settled at a figure at which the supply will be easy, and the export of produce from this port continues, there will be another speculative bound in the Stock Market which will carry the prices of the speculative shares to a figure much higher than any they have yet reached.

BANKING—CURRENCY.

The great demand which exists in the Western States for a currency with which to move the crops, offers to bankers a legitimate field for employing their circulation. The better credit which the issues of free Banks are treated with, make it particularly inviting to the bankers of our own State. The fact that our New York laws present the most perfect security to the bill-holder which it is possible to attain, has given our bank notes a name which insures their circulation in every quarter of the country. The low rate of discount at which they are redeemed in New York, prevents their remaining long in circulation, particularly when domestic exchanges are high, and there is a drain of specie from the interior. The chief quality which a Western farmer desires in a bank is, that the bills should be secured. That end attained, it matters very little to him whether the bills are promptly redeemed in specie or not If it is beyond the possibility of breaking he does not want it converted into specie, but if there is the slightest suspicion of its solvency, he has no means sufficiently rapid for exchanging it for specie at any cost. This is in a great measure the feeling of the whole community, and in places remote from great money centres, where large classes of men receive and pay out the same bills if the people only consider the bills as good they will hold them in their pockets for weeks, until they have occasion to pay them out. They will probably then be held again for a similar period and thus continue to be in legitimate circulation.

It is, therefore, in the element of security that we advise all free banks to be strongest. Western banks, especially, which are not expected to keep strong in specie, should be secured beyond a reasonable doubt. We are satisfied, too, that the profits of the business are more certain and stable when the currency is abundantly secured, and the bills in full confidence, and that it is the best interest of the banker as well of the community to keep the banks abundantly secured.

☞ Mr PERINO BROWN, has resigned the Atlanta Agency of the Georgia Railroad and Banking Company, and Mr. WM. W. CLAYTON has been appointed his successor, as agent at that place. Mr. Clayton will attend to the collection of notes, &c., in Atlanta.

☞ The American Bank Note Company have been intrusted with the getting out of plates and working material for the Bank of St. Petersburg, with a capital of £8,000,000 sterling. The bill of the company will not fall far short of $100,000, which, in view of the competition of English engravers for the work, several heavy English capitalists being interested in the new bank, is no ordinary compliment to American art.

Explanation of Descriptions.

Descriptions of counterfeit and altered bills are placed under the names of the Banks by which they purport to be issued.

Counterfeits, that is, fac-similes of the genuine notes of a Bank are designated as "imitation of genuine."

Raised note are genuine notes which have been raised in denominational value—as 10s or 20s raised from 1s.

All other bills described are altered, and are designated as unlike the genuine. They are generally the notes of broken and worthless banks which have fallen into the hands of counterfeiters, who have erased the title and name of location of the broken Bank, and inserted in their place—sometimes by pasting—sometimes by printing—the names of Banks in good credit. The vignettes, pictures, &c. of these notes are consequently entirely unlike those of the genuine, although the engraving is frequently just as good. The DESCRIPTIVE REGISTER OF GENUINE BANK NOTES will detect these bills at a glance, as fast as they may be put in circulation.

Explanation of Marks and Figures.

The figure or fraction opposite the name of each bank shows the discount at which we buy its notes.

A star [*] signifies that the bank is thrown out and without a quotation.

A × is placed opposite the names of new banks which we do not know enough about to quote.

The same mark placed inside the quotation signifies that the credit of the bank is doubtful.

Description of counterfeit and altered bills are placed under the names of the respective banks by which they purport to be issued.

For Banks not found in regular list in each State, see Broken and Closed Banks for that State.

Banks marked F are free banks, whose notes are secured by a deposit of stocks.

ABBREVIATIONS.—Unl. gen. means unlike genuine.
